

Dear FCC,

I feel that allowing cell phones to be used on airborne aircrafts would be the wrong thing to do. Not only would it be extremely intrusive to the cell phone user - due to the close confines of most aircraft, but it would not allow individuals the choice to not listen to another passengers conversation (a passenger that is sitting near to the listener).

I appreciate your time in listening to my opinion.